"The procurement simulator is a fun and educational way to be introduced to the tendering process and to become aware of the many decisions the contracting authority must make. At DLA Piper Denmark, we would like to help support innovative initiatives that can help public purchasers make the right decisions, and here the tender game is an excellent introduction to tendering."

WHO WE ARE

Nohrcon is a privately owned and independent Danish-based company. We are specialized in organizing courses and conferences, and we organize hundreds of courses, conferences and study tours each year in Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Germany. We develop our own courses and conferences in cooperation with lawyers and experts in the construction and public procurement industry, and therefore function independently of exogenous economic and political interests.

The vision of developing an educational game and revolutionizing education through gamification had been a long-standing dream. After years of conceptualization, the dream took a tangible form when we encountered a dedicated development team. A few years and several iterations later, we've now realized this vision, establishing a robust foundation for an innovative approach to learning.
